British citizen, full right to work in the UK

PROFILE

Digital designer with four years of in-house, studio and freelance work across London and Brisbane. My work covers brand identity, campaigns, print, motion and websites, and generative AI is a normal part of how I produce it. I'm used to client-facing work from brief to handover, and to working inside a busy marketing team. Now back in London and looking for a midweight digital designer role, agency or in-house.

EXPERIENCE

Freelance Designer

Finbar Studio, Brisbane then London

Sep 2024 - Present

Brand, print and web for direct clients in Australia and the UK, client-facing and sole designer on every job, from brief and IA through to launch and handover. Five production websites in 2026: I design them and run the build, the code is written with Claude Code, and I review, test and ship it.

Rennen Plus rennenplus.com.au · Porsche parts specialist, Adelaide · 2026

- Problem: Quotes worked out by hand from supplier price lists and a spreadsheet; the old Shopify store couldn't show which of 2,500 parts fitted which car.
- Solution: Car-first information architecture across 228 cars, so customers only ever see parts that fit. Live pricing from three supplier currencies with exchange rate, freight, import and GST, matched to the owner's spreadsheet to the dollar. 3D finish previews, live option pricing, search UX that reads owner shorthand ("992 exhaust"), a mobile-first design system and a catalogue assistant at no running cost.
- Result: Brief to live in five and a half weeks. About 6,000 pages and 23,000 images; 1,820 old Shopify links redirected to keep search rankings. Now the owner's pricing reference on customer calls.

- Problem: Social posts need a custom brand pathway graphic each time, and the social team couldn't make a unique one without a designer.
- Solution: Self-serve pathway generator built with Claude Code: brand templates exported as PNG, SVG, looping video and carousel packs, on brand every time.
- Result: About an hour a week back for the design team, and more autonomy for social.

Lows Design and Build lowsdesignandbuild.com · family building firm, South London · 2026

- Problem: A rough logo sketch, a dated Wix site, and homeowners wanting a ballpark price before booking a visit.
- Solution: Logo from the client's sketches. Responsive site design and build with a Sanity CMS the family edits, a component library, and a 42-field lead-generation estimate calculator for extensions and lofts, unlocked with a name and email.
- Result: Every estimate converts into a named lead with the project details attached. Samuel Low: “He has completely transformed our online presence.”

Lola Audio lola-audio.com · composer and sound designer, London · 2026

- Problem: A composer's portfolio has to let people hear the work; most music sites are a list of embedded players.
- Solution: Interaction design built around a mixing desk: four faders play four parts of a track in sync, a live waveform of the mix, and scroll that fades and rewinds the audio. Self-drawing signature and a film player with a VCR-style scrubber.
- Result: Lola Stoodley: “something aesthetically beautiful and totally original.”

Plated with Issy candlelit supper club · 2026

- Problem: A new supper club with no brand, and a host who wanted to keep the site current herself.
- Solution: Brand identity and art direction (Ballet script, Instrument Serif), 19 brand mockups from menus to wax-seal invites. One-scroll site where Issy orders her polaroids by dragging and adds Instagram posts by pasting a link.

- Result: Brief to launch in under a week, with one brand carried across the site, menus, invites and socials, so guests get the feel of the evening before they book. Issy Park: “It feels completely like me.”

KinAya and Momentum Mentoring NDIS support providers, South Australia · 2024 to 2025

- Problem: Two disability-support providers with no brand, writing for carers and people with low vision.
- Solution: Brand identities and guidelines. Accessible Framer site design, build and deploy, with a site-wide text resizer and a CMS handover so each team runs its own site.
- Result: Aryan Sareen, KinAya: “the branding and website genuinely felt like one vision.”
